

In recognition of Cervical Health Awareness Month, check out the attached!

- Cervical cancer is one of the most preventable cancers that affect women, yet more than 200 women in Maryland will die due to cervical cancer this year.
- Most cervical cancers are caused by HPV, the human papillomavirus.
- Pre-teens can and should get this vaccine that can protect against cervical cancer.
- Pap tests for women 21+ can also protect against cervical cancer as this easy test finds abnormal cells before they become cancer!

Pass this information along to help protect the ones you love. Remember: the HPV vaccine for boys and girls and Pap tests for women can prevent cervical cancer!
